

It's a bad idea for cell phones to be used on a commercial flight due to the fact that it hasn't been determined if they interfere with the electronic equipment on board. It might enhance terrorist communication as well. If there is an emergency, the flight attendants and flight crew can communicate via their onboard communications equipment.